The user must answer whether the card was compromised, lost or stolen. The user selects the "Yes" or "No" radio button. Then the user must select "Lost" or "Stolen" from the Case Disposition drop-down menu. The application only allows a disposition of lost or stolen once the lost/stolen question is answered yes.

If the card was not lost, or stolen, the user must answer all the questions under the "Case Review" section. For further guidance on how to answer these questions, click on the circular blue question mark "?" buttons next to each question. This function is not enabled for

Is the payment on contract or delivery task order?

The user enters whether or not the transaction was a payment on a contract or delivery order. The user selects the "Yes" or "No" radio button. If the answer is "Yes", then the user should enter the contract number in the free form text field to the right of the contract payment question.

The additional questions that follow in the "Case Review" section differ based on the transaction. These questions include eight common questions. For convenience checks there are four additional questions that are specific to convenience checks.

These questions can be answered as "Yes" or "No" by selecting the radio buttons. When a question doesn't pertain to the transaction being reviewed, there is an option for N/A. Every question must have an answer. Note that a yes or no response may trigger additional questions in a drop-down menu that is displayed to the right of the question. For example, answering "Yes" to "Was there adequate source documentation?" will trigger a list from which the user selects specific documents provided. Multiple selections may be made by holding down the control key (CTRL on the keyboard). The CTRL feature is not enable for this tutorial.

Is the payment on contract or delivery task order?

If yes is selected for a contract pay, all case review questions are greyed out.

The banks that issue the government credit cards have formal dispute and resolution procedures for transactions that a cardholder questions.
